

DEEP BREATHING

Resuscitation for the Reef

Janet Laurence

Aug 2016 - Jan 2017

Australia Museum
Sydney, Australia
www.australianmuseum.net.au

Deep Breating Resuscitation for the Reef

Deep Breating Resuscitation for the Reef is an installation that explores the effects of climate change affecting the Great Barrier Reef.

The work was first exhibited in Paris during the United Nations Convention on Climate Change in late 2015, and was critically acclaimed.

Deep Breating Resuscitation for the Reef was informed by a field trip to the Australian Museum's world-renowned Lizard Island Research Station.

